TRIBUTE TO MESSRS. SISTRUNK AND WARTMANN

It was my pleasure to know Mr. Carlos L. Sistrunk as a school boy. It was there he showed by his application and studious habits that there was the making of a man in him. He was not like other boys, with all their frivolous habits, but was ever found at his books, seeking the real pleasure that is not to be found in the disreputable habits of many boys. It was at school he developed the trait of an orator, and his application since in the practice of law has made him one of the silver-tongued orators of the state, and if it had been your pleasure to hear him speak on the Buckman bill you would not doubt my assertion. When he arises and says, "Mr. Speaker," the whole House is all attention, for they know that there is "something doing." While he is speaking all are on the qui vive, and when he finishes the House goes into a pandemonium, until called down by the speaker's gavel.

Mr. Sistrunk is one of the rising young men of Florida and is destined to write his name high on the banner of fame. In this prosaic time, when so many men are raised in luxury it is one of the blessings of the age to see a self-made man, who started on the bottom rung of the ladder at the public school, and who, by his own efforts, has advanced steadily, rung by rung, and is at his early age, nearly at the top. The future holds great things for such pluck and energy. It is with a great deal of pride that we look on these young and advancing men; it speaks great things for the future of our nation.

All honor to him who tries, for he is sure to win.

Hon. Ed. L. Wartmann, the shy reynard of Marion, who works in his quiet and unassuming way his wonders to perform, is the father of the automobile bill, and one of the strongest supporters of the Buckman bill. While Mr. Wartmann is not one of our best orators, he has a happy faculty of saying the right thing in the right place, and it always carries weight with it. He does not believe that he should be heard for his much speaking, so he works all the harder. He is a wonderful politician and one of the best members of the legislature. His work in favor of the Buckman bill was very visibly felt.

Marion county could not be better represented, and in the near future we expect to see Mr. Wartmann in the State Senate. Mr. Wartmann is one of our quiet workers, and has an irresistible way about him that few can refuse. When you see Mr. Wartmann working around on the quiet you can just look out, for something is going to drop, and if he is opposed to a measure it may drop hard. Mr. Wartmann is a success as a man in business and as a member of the Florida legislature. Tallahassee has not seen the last of Mr. Wartmann, for we believe Marion county will see fit to send him here again and again. Attache. Tallahassee, May 28.
